

Place-based Education:

Making School More Like a Farmers' Market

with David Sobel

WEDNESDAY, JULY 6

4:30-6:30pm

$10 per person

OISE Auditorium
252 Bloor St West (St. George subway)

Place-based education is a positive and creative way to connect schools to their communities, and to counter the decoupling of schools from historic sites, local landscapes and farms. What we need are schools organized around the principles of the farmers' market, drawing on the resources and variety of the local community.

Speaker David Sobel, author of Place-based Education: Connecting Classrooms and Communities and Communities and Childhood and Nature, will introduce examples of place-based education from the US, Canada and Europe to illustrate innovative initiatives from preschool through high school settings.

Host: Cam Collyer, Executive Director Programs, Evergreen

To register for this event, visit: evergreen.ca/placebasededucation

Co-sponsored by

